

This new degree will provide students with the engineering and science knowledge necessary to pursue successful careers in environmental engineering and related professions – in both the public and private sectors – as well as address critical challenges related to land, air and water quality.

New major in Environmental Engineering

More information can be found on the Department of Civil, Construction and Environmental Engineering's website at :
<https://www.ccee.iastate.edu/environmental-engineering/>